WESTERLY

There was a short session of the Westerly town council Tuesday, the greater part of which was occupied with a discussion of the erection of an honor roll to contain the names of all residents of the town who are or were in service, in army or navy, in the present war. Councilman Thorpe, who with Councilman Fowler, Clerk Whipple and Town Sergeant Clark made a report and presented a design with room for 480 names, or about 180 more names than are now available. Councilman Thorpe reported that such a board could be erected at a cost of $23, and that it was planned to erect same on the lawn of the town hall.

Councilman Robinson stated that such an honor roll to the men in service was not wanted by the people of Westerly and that a suitable honor roll could not be installed for the price quoted. After considerable discussion, a motion by Councilman Robinson, prevailed which authorized the committee to erect a suitable honor roll, regardless of cost, with full confidence in the committee that there should be no extravagant expenditure.

It is understood that now the honor roll will be constructed to conform to the architecture of the town hall, as suggested by President Flynn, will be surrounded by a brass eagle with a spread of five feet, and will be illuminated at night by electric lights. The roll will be used in the property of the water board and was originally intended to surmount the water tower on Quarry Hill. It is intended to inscribe the names of every resident who entered the service, including those who reported to do their bit and were rejected for physical reasons. The roll will be left to the discretion of the committee.

The boys had hold of an old shotgun that had been on the Chapman farm for years and it was supposed that the gun was not in the hands of the boys. The boys were playing at robbery, first one boy using the gun and then the other, each in turn assuming the role of robber, one running away and the other chasing and snapping the trigger. While the Wilcox boy held the gun it was discharged and the shot penetrated the heart of the Chapman boy, killing him almost instantly. He was the son of W. E. Chapman.

The fatality occurred shortly after 2 o'clock in the afternoon and it was several hours later before a medical examiner could be located, and then Dr. Samuel H. Long was called and pronounced the death purely accidental.

George H. Webb, director of the draft for the state of Rhode Island, announces that 30 limited service registrars will become clerks and stenographers at draft boards and draft registrars will be required to pass a written examination. The men will go to Camp Devens for equipment and clothing and will be sent back within a few days when they will be assigned by Captain Webb to draft boards. Three men will probably be detailed to draft headquarters. The other men will be assigned to selective, medical advisory and district boards. They will be assigned to other military duty when their services will be no longer required at draft boards. The nature of this duty is not given.

Under this call, volunteers are asked to draft headquarters or selective boards. With subsistence and other allowances the pay for privates will amount to $15.00 per month and for sergeants $17.50. The hours will be from 9 a. m. to noon, and from 1 to 5 p. m. daily.

E. Fielding Jones of Providence, a Westerly cottage, strictly observed the federal request that automobiles be not used Sundays in order to conserve gasoline. He arranged for the hire of a horse and carriage to take his family to and from the bathing beach Sundays, so long as the request be in force. Last Sunday only four automobiles were used by summer residents to go to and from the bathing beach and these made the return trip on flat tires. It was noted that the majority of transient automobiles at the Hill station were operated by men in federal uniform, and Policeman Chase remarked that they ought to lead in the observance of the request, rather than be the open violators.

Crandall, petition for the probating of two wills was continued to the next regular session of the court, Sept. 17; a demurrer protestant having been issued to take deposition of Mary J. Crandall, wife of Whitehouse Station, N. J., witness to one of the wills. The deposition will be taken before John Stone, and the original will in question was submitted to the commission. A photographic copy of the will is retained by the court.

The residence of William Burdick in Westerly was destroyed by fire Tuesday morning. The blaze starting in the oil from some unknown cause. The Burdick place is not within either the Watch Hill or the Westerly fire district, and therefore without fire protection. In short order the triple-action apparatus from the Hill had two streams of water on the burning building, through long lines of hose from the river. The house and contents were partially burned.
